

Montrose & District

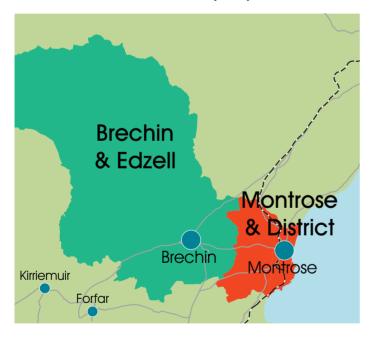

Introduction

The way we plan for place is changing. Traditionally, planning for places in Angus has been carried out with services and partners thinking about their own areas of expertise.

By introducing locality plans we want to encourage a more collective and co-ordinated way of thinking about how we improve outcomes in an area, whether they relate to the economy, people or the physical place.

Brechin and Montrose Locality Map

A vision for the Brechin and Montrose Locality

Local views and discussions were held with the communities and this has been articulated to a vision where the locality is about:

"Our people are vibrant and happy, our economy is vigorous and enlivened and our community is harmonious and a braw place to live where families enjoy together" Specifically;

Economy – Brechin, and Montrose locality maximises the potential of its unique assets to grow the local and Angus wide economy. Businesses are supported to grow and local well-paid employment is developed and sustained. It is also a competitive location for employers and a 'must go to' destination for visitors.

People – Children and adults are placed at the centre of service planning and delivery in order to deliver person centred outcomes. Every young person in School reaches the highest level of attainment and achievement which they are capable and all young people move to a destination which is positive and aspirational. All children, young people and adults have access to services which enable good health and well being.

Place – Brechin, and Montrose locality is a desirable place to live, work and visit. Town centres are vibrant, villages welcoming and value is placed on the spectacular rural landscape and natural environment. It is a connected place, both physically and digitally and has excellent potential for growth.

Over the last two years we have been building evidence to make sure that future plans for the locality are built on data analysis as well as contributions from partners, services and communities. Only by working together will we be able to prioritise what we do and take action to get the best outcomes. We all have a contribution to make if we are to make the vision a reality.

The tree diagram below highlights the statutory planning functions of all partners. All too often these plans are prepared in isolation of each other. Planning at the locality level has enabled partners to see the interconnections between the relevant plans and therefore better join up service delivery. In an ever reducing budget position it is important that we collectively get this right to minimise cost and further reduce duplication, whilst still providing vital services.

Communities have a strong part to play and both locality events and charrettes have helped to better understand what is important to people living and working in the Brechin and Montrose locality. Also, communities are leading the way in taking action to deliver their own priorities. So ,whether you are a business, a parent, a developer, an active community group, we all have a part to play.

Angus Council has undertaken a programme of charrettes in town centres across Angus. The purpose of the charrette was to engage as many partners, services and com-munities as possible to consider how best to improve the vibrancy and the way in which we use our town centres into the future. A number of priorities were identified in the Brechin and Montrose charrettes as outlined below:-

Montrose Charrette

Brechin Charrette

The Angus Community Planning Partnership arranged and delivered four locality events across Angus as a way of bringing partners, services and communities together to consider priorities for each of the four localities. The Brechin and Montrose Locality Event was based around 'open space' which meant people could bring anything that they wanted to the table and other participants could join in the discussion if the issue was also important to them. Following rich discussions a number of priorities were supported by those in attendance at the event.
